Dymond James is a manager at global biotechnology leader, Amgen, responsible for company's Oncology National Payer contracting strategy, coverage-related decision-making and analytics supporting brand decisions across the marketed oncology portfolio. Before this role, Dymond led Product-specific pricing strategies, value-based contracts, and net revenue impact analyses increasing Product coverage and patient access across 6 regional Pharmacy Benefit Managers & Managed Care Accounts covering over 9.9M lives. In addition, she currently holds a strategic planning position and a data analytical leadership position with varying Employee Resource Groups.

Prior to joining Amgen, Dymond served 7 years as an Active Duty Officer in the United States Air Force. Sha has commanded teams overseeing global command and control of $17.6B space warning system delivering decisive assessments of worldwide infrared events threatening US safe as well as assembled comprehensive reports and request for proposals for Planning, Programming, & Budgeting Congressional Pillar improving Air Force activities and equipment productivity. Dymond is a graduate of the United States Air Force Academy with a Bachelor of Science in Biology and holds a Master of Business Administration. She also authors for the United States Air Force Academy's Association of Graduates magazine, Checkpoints, highlighting approximately 1000 fellow classmates.